New Explosions in Huge Oil Refinery Spread Great Fire

Fire That Killed 3 Sunday Still Raging at Wellsville, N. Y.

NAPHTHA BLOWS UP

Firemen Believe Sinclair Blaze Will Be Brought Under Control

WELLSVILLE, N. Y.—(AP)—A spectacular explosion Monday spread new havoc in the 15-million-dollar Sinclair Oil company refinery after 3 men had been killed and 75 injured in a chain of fire and explosions Sunday night. A storage tank containing 2,500 barrels of naphtha exploded shortly before daybreak. None was reported injured but a similar tank, exploding Sunday night, skyrocketed across the near Genesee river and killed three spectators on the opposite bank. Another explosion, less intense, jarred the refinery during the forenoon, but firemen were hopeful the fire might be extinguished by night.

Mexico Sends an Envoy to F. D. R.

Official Greetings Given President on Fishing Voyage

U. S. S. HOUSTON, En Route to Panama.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, sailing toward equatorial Pacific fishing grounds, Sunday received greetings from President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico as the Houston dropped anchor off Cedros Islands, Lower California.

The Mexican gunboat G-29 brought Capt. Roberto Gomez Magaro, head of the naval service at Guaymas, to a point where the Houston dropped anchor, and Magaro conveyed the Cardenas felicitations after an exchange of salutes between the warships.

Captain Magaro told Mr. Roosevelt that the Mexican president wished him well and hoped he would have the best of luck while fishing in Mexican waters. President Roosevelt acknowledged the greeting with thanks. He informed Magaro he had advised President Cardenas before leaving Washington he had hoped to visit either Mazatlan or Acapulco but had found his schedule made it impossible for him to do so.

The Mexican naval officer arrived aboard which church services were in progress and the formalities took place immediately after worship.

Lieut. Chaplain Herbert R. Trump conducted the services. In accordance with naval tradition the church pennant flew above the national ensign during the services.

The Houston came to anchor after an all-night run from San Diego averaging 21 knots. The sea was calm and a moderate southwest breeze was blowing.

Another American Crosses Atlantic Solo in Old Plane

Corrigan, in 1929 Model, Reaches Ireland Non-Stop in 28 Hours

A SURPRISE FLIGHT

"Going to California," But He Flew Eastward Instead

DUBLIN, Ireland.—(AP)—Douglas P. Corrigan, American flier who took off from New York on "a flight to California" dropped unheralded from the skies Monday at Baldonnel, Ireland. He made the flight in an antiquated single-engine plane of the vintage of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" in 28 hours 13 minutes. He took off from Floyd Bennett field Sunday at 3:17 a. m. (Hope time) and landed at Baldonnel, airport for Dublin, at 7:30 a. m. Monday (Hope time). Nothing had been heard from him since the takeoff. He had no radio, and only the barest navigating instruments.

A 9-Year-Old Plane

He piloted a dilapidated monoplane of 1929 vintage, similar to Charles A. Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis," which was capable of a transatlantic crossing when it was new—in 1929. Corrigan's ship carried 300 gallons of gasoline, enough to keep him aloft about 40 hours, long enough for an Atlantic crossing; and there had been unconfirmed reports around the airfield that he was going to try.

Non-Stop Across Continent

He landed the ship at Floyd Bennett last Sunday after flying nonstop from Long Beach in about 28 hours. Airman considered it an unusual feat because of the age of his craft and the fact that it carried a minimum of equipment as compared with the elaborate instruments carried by modern planes.

Space gasoline tanks occupied the forward part of the cabin, as in Lindbergh's plane, and Corrigan had no forward vision. He flew "blind" from Long Beach to New York with the aid of the compasses, a bank and turn indicator and an inclinometer.

Air field attendants waited in vain to see Corrigan turn back toward the west after he took off at 3:17 a. m. but he disappeared into a murky eastern sky.

Aided Lindbergh

When he landed here a week ago he said he merely was on a vacation trip to visit friends and that he planned to return to Long Beach today. Corrigan is an expert mechanic, having aided in the construction of Lindbergh's plane and worked in several west coast factories. He service his own plane while here and was unconcerned when he was lauded for his nonstop flight under conditions which airman considered completely out-moded.

"It was just like taking an old model T out in present day traffic," said one Floyd Bennett field official.

Jap Planes Land on Chinese Airport in "Most Daring" Raid

SHANGHAI, China.—(AP)—Japanese naval fliers Monday carried out what a Japanese naval communiqué described as the "most daring attack in the history of military aviation." During a large-scale attack upon a big Chinese airdrome at Nanchang a squadron of Japanese bombing planes landed at the airport despite rifle and machine-gun fire from the Chinese defenders, the communiqué stated. Then the bombers' crews jumped out of their planes, seized two machine-gun magazines as war booty, chased Chinese fleeing in a gasoline truck into a neighboring field, and "returned to their base unscathed."

Rebels Break Up Federal Defenses

Valencia Threatened in Decisive Turn of Spanish Civil War

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier.—(AP)—Government resistance along the Teruel-Mediteranean highway virtually collapsed Monday as Spain's civil war swung into its third year.

Government Defeated

HENDAYE, France (At the Spanish Frontier).—(AP)—The hard-pressed Spanish government's lines were smashed Sunday in a sector vital to the defense of Valencia by a crushing blow that may change the whole picture of the Spanish war now entering its third year.

Insurgent Gen. Jose Varela's Navarrese, striking deep into government territory south and east of the Teruel-Corrigan lines in eastern Spain, swept into positions that threatened not only Valencia but possibly also Cuenca and Madrid to the west.

There was gloom in Barcelona, the government capital, and in Valencia as officials prepared war anniversary observances that will include a broadcast by rarely-heard President Manuel Azana tomorrow.

Both sides seemed to have concentrated every possible plane, tank, gun and man in the arid, scorching countryside where the action may quicken the insurgent march toward Valencia and lead eventually to a breach of communications between that port and Madrid.

Government reports said that the insurgents lost "thousands and thousands" of killed and wounded. Insurgent reports mentioned between 3,000 and 4,000 government prisoners were taken.

Varela apparently was taking advantage of the unprecedented concentration of government forces in the area, estimated at 180,000 about 50 miles northwest of Valencia. Mora de Rubielos, Albuñol, and San Augustin, on the 22-mile front, were captured Saturday in a fierce offensive in which the insurgents used every variety of weapon.

Mora de Rubielos, point of a salient the government had held two months north of Sagunto road, fell quickly. Insurgents said they ran up their flag 30 minutes after storming the town's entrenchments. The swift government withdrawal, apparently, was to remove a force estimated at 40,000 men from peril of isolation as insurgent planes pressed in the base of the salient along the highway.

Late Sunday the government admitted the fall of Barbañes and Fina two towns inside Valencia province and along the road from Teruel to Sagunto. A Barcelona communiqué said the "Italian invaders" succeeded in occupying the territory after a terrific combat in which the insurgents used 50 tanks supported by constant aerial attacks.

France Puts on a Much Bolder Front

Daladier Voted "Temporary Dictator" 3 Days After Taking Office

PARIS, France.—(AP)—When quick-tempered Edouard Daladier was named premier of France on April 10, his country faced another financial crisis, there was another outbreak of strikes and the foreign situation was reaching the crisis stage again because of the Austrian trouble.

"We cherish democracy more than I have come from the working classes," declared Daladier in one of his speeches. "But," he warned Frenchmen in another, "unless the nation goes to work, France may expect a dictator to make it work."

Three days after he took office he was voted power to rule by decree. That meant that the blue-eyed, stocky Daladier, although he had little power in comparison with a Hitler or a Mussolini, was "temporary dictator" of France.

Works For a Strong France

The premier went to work to restore the Frenchman's confidence in his country's ability to hold its place in the sun. He appealed to French patriotism in a way that Frenchmen could not ignore.

"War threatens Europe," he said in effect, "and France has been weakened. We must work to make a strong France, or France is lost."

He strengthened the nation's armed forces, solidified an alliance with Britain as an offset to the Berlin-Rome axis, laid the base for a three-year economic program and brought about at least temporary peace between capital and labor.

He also devalued the franc nine percent and raised all taxes eight percent. Both actions were unpopular with Frenchmen, but he seems to have convinced the nation that both were necessary. And he has cut tourists' costs to help bring money into the country.

Defense Loan Oversubscribed
Daladier played no favorites. His increased tax decree hit capital hard, but he hit labor, too, when he told it the 40-hour week law could not be carried out to the letter.

On May 14 a defense loan of $140,000,000 was announced. The next day the government reported that the French people had oversubscribed the loan. On May 24 the government came through with a three-year, $304,000,000 public works program to speed industrial production.

"Wild bull of the Camargue," Daladier is sometimes called. For he is a fighter. His worst political enemies admit it, and he has cut tourists' costs to help bring money into the country.

Arkansas Has Choice Location at Greatest of World's Fairs

The above drawing shows Arkansas' corner at the New York World's Fair in 1939, now in construction and destined to be the greatest world's fair in history, according to its backers, who are investing $150,000,000 to make it a spectacular success.

Arkansas' space, 3,000 square feet, is situated in one of a group of buildings covering eleven acres and comprising the Court of States, the gardens, fountains and architecture of which will interpret the early-American influences—English, French and Spanish.

The advantageous location of Arkansas' space will permit three entrances to the state's advertising display, one from Rainbow avenue, a main thoroughfare which traverses the 1,216-acre site of the great fair.

The location of the Court of States in the Fairgrounds and Arkansas' space in the Court of States makes it certain according to Fair experts, that at least 10,000,000 of the expected 50,000,000 visitors will pass through one of the three entrances and see Arkansas' display of its attractions and advantages.

This offers the greatest and cheapest opportunity Arkansas has ever had to attract tourists, vacationists, home seekers and industries to the state, to spend millions of dollars (tourists last year spent at least $50,000,000 in Arkansas) and bring greater prosperity to all of us. The cost to Arkansas will be $125,000, which the Centennial Commission is now raising by popular subscription.

Roosevelt Likely to Report on Trip to Report on Trip

His Return From Western Tour

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Well informed persons considered it increasingly possible Monday that President Roosevelt would make a "fireside chat" about his Western tour when he returns to Washington.

Such a speech, they said, would give him an opportunity not only to recount his personal observations of American conditions, but also to summarize his political and legislative objectives.

Another package killed Michael Gallagher, aged sexton of St. Mary's cemetery near Fugman's home.

87-Year-Old Lawyer Is Finally Admitted to the District Court

AUGUSTA, Me.—(AP)—Although his application had been on file for 12 years, John H. Montgomery, Camden, Me., attorney was only admitted to practice in the U. S. District Court at Portland by Judge John A. Peters recently at the age of 87.

"I just thought I'd come in and be admitted," he told the judge who said Montgomery was the oldest man ever to be admitted in his or "any other court I guess."

Montgomery, politician, poet and philosopher, claims to have discovered Edna St. Vincent Millay, the poet, a former resident of Camden. She wrote her first poem on his desk at 13 and dedicated it to him. Recognizing her talent he helped her through high school and college and started her on a career.

Professor Uncovers Colony of Rare Beetles

KINGSVILLE, Texas.—(AP)—In 14 years of search for the black sarking beetle, Prof. Joe C. Brown of Texas A. & M. college never had found more than five in any one colony until a recent trip.

Then he discovered 19—more than he had obtained in previous finds combined—under driftwood on an island in Corpus Christi bay.

The life history of the beetle has not been defined and is one of entomology's major question marks. In 1919 the U. S. bureau of entomology offered a prize for complete information on the bug but the reward has never been claimed.

Judge Bush Sets August 22 as Date for Court-house Removal Case

RECESS UNTIL FRIDAY

Criminal Docket to Be Taken Up Then—New Cases Are Filed

The first session of Hempstead circuit court to be held in Hope was convened in the auditorium of Hope city hall Monday by Judge Dexter Bush who set August 22 as the date for the hearing of the Hempstead county seat removal contest case.

In setting the date for August 22, Judge Bush said that he would be free to hear the case without interruption by other cases.

The official vote of the June 11 election gave Hope a majority of more than 400 votes. Attorneys representing Washington interests filed contest proceedings in county court which were subsequently appealed to circuit court.

Criminal Cases Set
During the brief court session here Monday, criminal cases against defendants who are in jail, were set for Friday of this week. Defendants who are at liberty under bond will go to trial at the regular October term of court.

No civil cases will be heard at this adjourned term of court.

The next session of court, beginning here at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning, the following trial cases will be heard:

Lynn Simpson, negro, charged with carrying a pistol.
Bernie Dixon, Sam Cross and James Logan, all negroes, charged with receiving stolen property in connection with the theft of 15 pairs of ladies shoes and one case of paper bags from a Missouri Pacific box car.

Bob Spence, negro, pleaded guilty in court Monday to breaking into the box car and stealing the 15 pairs of shoes and case of paper bags. He will be sentenced Friday. Other cases to be heard are:

Fred Jackson, negro, burglary and grand larceny in connection with the robbery of the Sid Houston store.
New Cases Filed
Prosecuting Attorney Ned Stewart filed information against the following defendants whose trials will be heard at the regular October term of court:

George Briggs, negro, carnal abuse.
Earl Conway, negro, carnal abuse.
Dierks Holt, negro, carnal abuse.
Hettie Hill, negro, assault with intent to kill another negro by stabbing and cutting.

Marvin Lee, white, grand larceny.
Lester Lee, white, grand larceny.
The purpose of the adjourned term of court is to try cases where defendants are in jail and unable to make bond in order to relieve the county of expense.

All cases where the defendants are under bond are subject to the regular October docket.

Municipal court was not in session Monday at the city hall, due to the convening of circuit court. However, Judge W. K. Lemley heard one case at his office.

Dale Phipps of Washington entered a plea of guilty to petit larceny for theft of gasoline from Dolph Corrigan and was fined $25 and sentenced to a day in jail.

Municipal court will convene next Monday.

Tricky Winds Force Canadians to Buy Bees in California

GREAT FALLS, Mont.—(AP)—California honey bees are transported to Canada and then executed after doing a summer's work of honey production.

The variable winter climate in southern parts of the Canadian provinces is said to be responsible for the strange traffic.

Chinook winds sweep the provinces and lead the dormant bees to believe spring has come and flowers are about to bloom. The bees bestir themselves and attempt to fly out of the hives, only to discover winter has returned. After this occurs several times the bees are exhausted and are worthless for the summer.

So each spring colonies of bees are imported from California. After they produce honey all summer they are killed in the late fall. The queen is saved and she is sent by mail to California to live throughout the winter and to become the nucleus for a new colony.

Experience, New Instruments Make Cancer Detection Easier

The entire gastro-intestinal tract of a human being is from 25 to 30 feet long. Nine or 10 inches of this make up the esophagus, which goes from the throat to the stomach, and the stomach itself is about the same length. This represents a considerable area over which it is possible for cancer to appear, because the lining of the intestines is of the type of cells which may give rise to cancer.

Apparently cancers appear more often in those portions of the intestines where the material which passes along may stagnate or set up irritation. These are the places particularly where the intestines become narrow. In the esophagus, there is the possibility of irritation from food that is coarse or insufficiently chewed, or from food that is too hot or irritating.

We know today that little is to be accomplished in the control of cancer of the stomach or of the intestines unless the condition is discovered early. Certain types of cancer are less difficult to control because they grow slowly and because they make their presence known by bleeding. Others make their presence known by producing obstruction of the bowel at an early date.

Cancers that are hard to recognize are the small, hard cancers which do not bleed and which produce little irritation or obstruction until they have become so large that they produce complete obstruction. Nevertheless, the outlook is not hopeless because we are learning more and more about the changes which occur in the development of new growths in the intestines and stomach.

We have a great many new tools which scientists are able to use in studying these tissues. We have instruments like the gastroscope, the esophagoscope, and the proctoscope in which it is possible to view at close range the lines of the tissues concerned with these devices, and thus to aid early diagnosis.

Moreover, we have now the X-ray, which is most useful in determining the presence of new growths in the gastro-intestinal tract. Nowadays the patient may swallow a mixture of milk and certain salts which are opaque to the X-ray. The pictures will then show interference with the smoothness of the lining of the wall of the stomach and of the intestines. These examinations should be made early.

There are more new methods for attacking cancers in the esophagus. It becomes possible to open the abdomen and to go after the tumor from below. It is also possible to treat such tumors with the X-ray or to use radium. Moreover, there are new devices in the form of electrical coagulation which can destroy such growths if they can be reached by the instrument.

Let Children Indulge That Instinct for Adventure.

(No. 145)
Adventure. This is not only the child's natural world, but the world of every human being. Adventure means attempting the untried and conquering by courage. If we did not love adventure, there would be no books, no movies, no experience.

Books of adventure are excellent fodder for the emotions, and so are shows. But they are second-rate thrills. There is nothing quite so precious as the real thing and living life at first hand. When any of us read a rattling good story of danger and courage, escapes and heroism, we are only pretending we would be as brave and noble as the protagonist. The same with moving pictures.

It all leaves a lack. Older people with days of struggle and attempt behind them merely sigh faintly and wish they were younger. The growing child is not so easily satisfied. He craves the opportunity of trial with just a dash of risk. He may choose one way or that risk, or prefer another. But with most healthy kids and some energetic girls it takes the form of physical or muscular risk.

There is a school of thought that thinks permission to do these things is the only way to real adolescence. I am inclined to agree. My reservations are not, however, age, competence and the gradual build-up of experience. I think, are absolutely necessary. Complete ignorance is too great a risk. There is a difference between foolishness and a certain fitness.

This means, then, that a child must be allowed some little adventurous risks all along the line as he grows and learns to manage his body and his wits. The little fellow who walks to school for the first time is learning to stop, look and listen. He runs a risk, but he learns a big lesson.

I like to see children attempting just a little more than they have done. I like to see their spirit having its little fling. I think we parents have to let out the rope a little and give them their chance once in a while. Tom Sawyer took his chances in spite of Aunt Polly, and so will other Toms. We may as well wish them "God speed."

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

She Had Courage, Wit, and Red Hair.

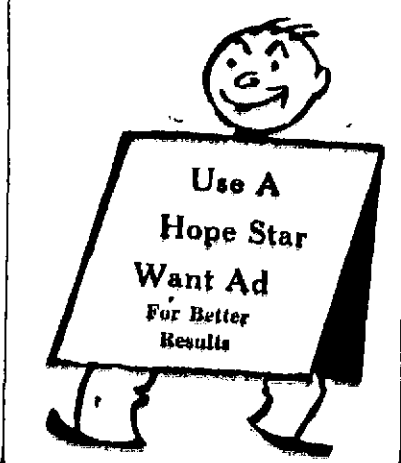

Red-haired, snub-nosed daughter of an Irish policeman, May Flavin grew up against the raucous, teeming background of Chicago in the gay nineties. May was no ordinary girl. May was fiery, impetuous, possessed of an abounding heart and a great courage. She personified in the finer qualities the motherhood of all America.

So her story is a beautifully tender, magnificent thing as Myron Brinig tells it in another successful novel for him, "May Flavin" (Farrar and Rinehart, $2.50). If you will recall Mr. Brinig's "Singer" or "The Sisters," you will have a pretty good hint of the kind of poetic insight you are sure to find in this book.

"May Flavin" tells of the witty, courageous woman who loved Mike Flavin and who followed him through good fortune and bad, bearing him six children, battling for him and for them. For the most part May had bad fortune.

Foreshadowing Mike's desertion, a son shot by gangsters . . . all this May bore, and much more, never once giving up. And when Sean and Queenie reversed the tables and brought fame and fortune, she took that also in her stride. Such was the character of this little woman.

Thus Mr. Brinig's portrait of a lifetime becomes something of a part of the American scene itself, leaving an indelible impression. You will very likely go a great while before you meet again so many really living characters. And the sooty Chicago skyline will linger long after you've turned the last page—P. G. F.

The Thinking Citizens of Arkansas

Proudly Present

R. A. (BOB) COOK

the SAFE Candidate for GOVERNOR

"Let's Finish the Job"

Arkansas will begin a new era of unparalleled advancement and administrative efficiency with the election of Judge R. A. "Bob" Cook as Governor of the State on August 9th. The proof of this challenging prediction is found in the amazing accomplishment of this successful business man during his two terms of office as County Judge of Pulaski County. Judge Cook's platform contains no promises that cannot and will not be fulfilled. Arkansas has already seen enough of lavish pledges uttered without hope of fulfillment. Arkansas has not forgotten. It's time for a change in the office of governor!

Business & Industry

Judge Cook believes that Arkansas's future depends largely upon our attitude toward business and capital, upon equitable freight rates and a favorable tax structure. He will bend every effort to attract new industry to the state and encourage those already here!

Public Schools

Judge Cook favors a minimum term of eight months for all school grades, which can be accomplished without tax increase or hardship. The Equalizing Fund will be maintained. The Teachers' Retirement Fund and adequate salaries to teachers encouraged; and the selection of text books removed from political manipulation!

Farm & Labor

Judge Cook will closely co-operate with the Federal government's program of soil conservation, reforestation, wild life conservation, flood control, crop diversification and home building. He will further the advancement and prosperity of the farmer and laborer, removing the State Labor Department from politics and placing it in the hands of an efficient personnel committed to an impartial and constructive program.

Auto Testing Law

Judge Cook favors the repeal of that part of the Motor Vehicle Safety Act that requires automobile owners to pay 50c for testing cars. Other features of this act have a tendency to correct the cause of many accidents and should be retained.

Special Attorney Fees

Judge Cook believes the state can save more than $50,000 a year by working hand in hand with the attorney general's office and curbing the costly practice of employing special attorneys, long promised by other candidates, but heretofore never put into effect.

Charitable Institutions

Arkansas's eleemosynary institutions . . . crippled children's hospital, blind school, school for the deaf, tuberculosis sanatorium and the state hospital need the businesslike administration, free from political manipulation; that only Judge Cook can give. Those afflicted, know only to well the need of sympathetic and just supervision to lessen their handicaps.

State Owned Cars

Judge Cook will confine the operation of the state's 300 automobiles to operation and use for state purposes only! Judge Cook believes state employees should own their own cars and receive a reasonable mileage or flat allowance for use in the conduct of the state's business.

Refunding State Debt

Judge Cook believes that the state's Highway Bonds can be refunded at a much more favorable rate of interest through the reinstatement of confidence in the state and its administration. In this the advice of leading Arkansas experts will be sought and welcomed.

Highway System

Under Judge Cook's plan of refunding state indebtedness, substantial sums in interest can be saved. New construction then, may be expected from this new source of revenue! The selection of new highways will be made according to their importance in travel.

Civil Service

Judge Cook believes that a Civil Service Law that is subject to change at the whim of each legislature, and the execution thereof subject to the pleasure of a politician, will not be a practical solution of the problem. He favors a Civil Service that will be stable and fair. . . . and not a Bailey Civil Service!

Welfare Department

Welfare funds for the needy . . . not for the greedy; a welfare program that gives back to the several counties some responsibility and authority in giving relief to the needy who live therein . . . free from domination by a large, costly, well-oiled and wasteful political machine. That is Judge Cook's pledge for the welfare department.

SERIAL INTERNE TROUBLE BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
TRAN DEARBORN—heroine, student nurse, who has love and trouble when she meets
DR. BOB BENCHLEY—hero, handsome young intern. He has trouble, too, keeping up with his
DR. STEPHEN SARGENT—head surgeon. Dr. Sargent's problem was something else again.

Yesterday, in a moment of bitterness, Tran developed a sudden nursing care report concerning Dr. Sargent. Everything turns black before her when he begins to read it. How did he get it?

CHAPTER X

TRAN was never to forget the horror of the 10 minutes that followed.

In one sickening flash she had realized how this thing had come to happen to her. The morning before Beula Tagg had volunteered to carry her nursing care report to Miss Armstrong's office. And on her desk with it had lain, forgotten, that farical report on the case of the mythical "X."

Now Dr. Sargent's clear, fastidious voice was reading it to the end, smoothly, gravely, inexorably, while Tran sat rigid.

"As I believe I told you," he said, "the case is not one that has come under my professional care—nor, so far as I know," he coughed, "under that of any of our staff. Therefore I may perhaps be permitted more frankness in my comments than I might otherwise use in discussing the medical handling of a case."

The class, fully aware that there was more to this than met the naked eye, exchanged furtive glances. Tran measured the distance to the door, but sat still from sheer motor paralysis.

"I read it to you," Dr. Sargent was going blandly on, "because of several unusual aspects of the report. The first"—his lips twitched slightly—"is the scrupulous reference to the text with which the nurse interlards her remarks and explains her own reactions. The second is the amazing fact that after 10 years of observation the case was still lacking a diagnosis, when any police court magistrate should have known at a glance that the patient was a mental case—a schizothyme with a marked Napoleon complex, hovering dangerously near dementia praecox."

"Another strange aspect," Dr. Sarge was going on, "is that so carefully documented a report should say no more about treatment than that the nurse repeatedly attempted to soothe the patient with 'little thoughtful attentions,' I believe was the phrase." He affected to refer to the manuscript for corroboration. "Of course, mental illness is outside the scope of your present experience, but I wonder if anyone happens to know what treatments are most commonly used in such cases. . . . Miss—er—" he glanced at the class list before him as if selecting a name.

But Tran knew before he spoke whose name he was going to call. "Miss Dearborn?" he said. "Perhaps you could tell me?"

So he was going to play cat and mouse with her, was he?

Tran cleared her throat, but knew that if she cleared it a dozen times her voice would not come. Before he could pursue the matter further, however, the bell mercifully ended the period.

Tran would have scurried out of the room without a backward glance, but Dr. Sargent called, "Oh, Miss Dearborn—just a minute, please."

"Have you ever thought," he asked then, "that fiction writing might be more exciting than nursing?"

For a moment Tran's heart stood still at the ominous implication of his words.

"I thought you might like to destroy the evidence," he went on, putting the paper into her hands.

Why, Tran thought, but—he's really laughing—inside. He doesn't mind at all. . . . Oh, I'll never be afraid of him again.

"Oh, Dr. Sargent," she choked out, "I—yes—oh, I think you're simply swell!"

Then she did flee, because all of a sudden she realized that she adored Dr. Stephen Sargent.

OF course she knew he would probably never even give her another thought. But that didn't really matter. All that mattered was that he should be alive and exactly what he was going to do about it. . . . Only that now everything would be entirely different, because she understood now that he knew how to laugh, and how to be kind. . . . And some time she was going to work with him.

Naturally, when one might contemplate a radiant god—even if only from a remote distance—one had no time for lesser beings like Bob Benchley of the world. The situation might easily have proved difficult when, early in Tran's second year, she was assigned to duty in Emergency. For young Dr. Benchley had been retained at Saint Vincent's as assistant to Dr. Sargent; and it was he who was most frequently called to Emergency in an advisory capacity when the internes found themselves beyond their professional depth. But young Dr. Benchley seemed to have retired with definite finality to distances of his own. He was brisk, businesslike, and im-

Gay Floyd and Orchestra to Play Here on July 22

Arrangements were completed Monday with King's Artist Inc., and the chairman of entertainment of the Country club for the appearance of Gay Floyd and his famous NBC orchestra, who will pass through Hope on route to Hollywood, Calif., for appearance in forthcoming all colored musical comedy.

Floyd has long been a favorite of the New York and Chicago smart set and has just closed the Grand Terrace Cafe in Chicago where he was aired nightly via the Mutual network. Along with the Floyd company of entertainers is American favorite One Mand Band from Miles, Mich., Frisco Boom Boom band, who has starred on the Valle hour, and has appeared on both Major Bowles and Fred Allen programs.

T. S. Cornelius in presenting Gay Floyd is giving the City of Hope one of the outstanding attractions of the year. Floyd and the entire unit travel in a new sleeper bus, coming here directly from a one-night stand on the Claridge roof in Memphis.

THEATERS

At the New University's "Air Devils," a dramatic thriller of love, battle royal, adventure and comedy on a South Sea island, comes to the New Theater on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Larry Blake, Dick Purcell, Beryl Wallace and Margo Clark have the featured roles, supported by Minerva Urecal, Charles Bruckner, Forbes Murray, Roy Mason, Paul Sutton, Al Kikume, Billy Wayne and Michael Visaroff.

Blake is the actor who made such a sensational debut in "The Road Back." Purcell is one of Hollywood's outstanding young leading men. Miss Wallace, playing her first film role, was featured for four years in all of Earl Carroll's Broadway stage shows, while Miss Clark is the native Hawaiian beauty who was featured in "Mutiny on the Bounty" and "Hurricane."

"Air Devils" tells of the fights and frolics of Blake and Purcell as two ex-Marines. The picture, a Trem Carr production, was filmed against the picturesque Monterey Bay country in northern California and near the United States Marine base at San Diego. It was written by Harold Buckley and George Waggoner and directed by John Hawks.

premiership as the Stavisky scandal led to riots, shows it.

The "wild bull" emerged from parliament's 18-day session in June with his government firmly in power. Adjourning parliament gave him a free hand to rule by decree until November. So he and his "national defense cabinet" continue to match their wits and French patriotism against the power of totalitarian governments.

"If he fails," said many a politician as Daladier took office, "there is nobody left—no known leader." After he had gone into action, the same group echoed the words of Frenchmen in Paris cafe terraces:

"We have a strong government. Now let the enemies of France watch their step."

Now nobody may fish in the lake except town residents who carry special fishing licenses. And the fishing has improved considerably, the citizens report.

Summer Safety Is Stressed in Home

Falls and Burns Are Most Frequent Accidents in Home

By NEA Service

NEW YORK—When you're putting your house in order for the summer, it's a good idea to do a bit of checking up from a safety point of view.

Keeping in mind that falls and burns top the home accident list, make a systematic survey of your house or apartment. You will doubtless discover a number of hazards which can be eliminated with surprisingly little effort. Perhaps several telephone calls, and a few inexpensive items added to your shopping list, will do the trick.

Summer rugs are likely to be light in weight and soft in texture. Thus they rumple and slide easily and are a menace to unwary feet. If this is a problem in your home, there's a simple remedy—a sticky fluid which can be bought at department and hardware stores. You apply it with a brush to the under side of the rug. It doesn't harm the floor, nor the fabric, and you can life the rug with a good, hard pull. But the rug stays securely in place when stepped on.

Wooden or linoleum-corned floors can be finished attractively with a new type of wax highly recommended for its non-slip quality—and it gives a splendid gloss. If your neighborhood shops can't supply this product, ask one of the merchants to investigate it for you.

Chimneys, flues, furnaces and stoves should be thoroughly cleaned and inspected. Don't rely on your own judgment, but get an expert to check the condition of heating equipment. He may discover loose connections, worn parts, faulty insulation, and other defects which have entirely escaped you.

Check Gas Stoves, Too

Gas stoves, usually in constant use, need frequent cleaning and adjusting.

STORIES IN STAMPS

Father of American Constitution

CONSTITUTIONS and congresses were the concern of James Madison for nearly all of his extremely busy life. He first became a zealous student of government in his college days in New Jersey, at what is now Princeton University. His last public service was in the Virginia Constitutional Convention of 1829.

In the momentous intervening years, Madison served in the Virginia legislature, the Continental Congress, the Constitutional Convention of 1787 at Philadelphia, the new Congress, was secretary of state under Jefferson and finally was elected fourth President of the United States.

So this energetic little man grew to become a foundation stone in American constitutional problems. In the convention at Philadelphia he introduced the Virginia plan and rendered such efficient and brilliant service generally that his associates called him the Father of the Constitution. It was Madison who proposed the original resolutions calling for the creation of the departments of state, war and treasury. Likewise he proposed a series of amendments to the Constitution, advocated by the states, out of which were drafted the first 10 amendments.

Madison (1751-1836) is shown above on a stamp of the new U. S. regular series. The stamp, pink, is entered.

Player-List Deadline Is Set for Tuesday Noon of This Week

Cornelius Named as League Umpire

Second-Half Schedule to Open Tuesday Night of This Week

Entries in the second half of the Hope Softball League must file their player-list not later than noon Tuesday, E. S. Greening, league president, ruled Monday. The list is to be turned in to Mr. Greening.

Managers have until Saturday to file their official list of players; that is the list with each player's own signature. Entry blanks may be obtained at the office of Hope Star.

The Bremer-Ivory team was the only one that had been filed Monday morning.

Cornelius to Umpire
Mr. Greening announced the appointment of Ralph Cornelius as head umpire for all league games. He will also officiate at exhibition contests.

Cornelius was instructed to make his own financial arrangement with the league treasurer, Kelly Bryant, and also to employ his own assistant.

Mr. Cornelius was instructed to rigidly enforce the time-rule for starting all games or to declare a forfeit, Mr. Greening said. The time-rule reads as follows:

"RULE 112: Any one team not ready to play within 15 minutes after the playing time forfeits the game, the umpire to decide and rule upon this."

Mr. Greening also announced that Umpire Cornelius would have sole authority on the field and that his decisions would be final.

11 Teams May Enter
There was a possibility of 11 teams entering the last-half schedule, all that competed in the first half with the exception of Washington.

One filed a list of players with the league president Saturday, but a poll of managers Monday showed that they were not in favor of increasing the league due to the lateness in getting the second-half underway.

Earl W. Eason, schedule-maker, announced games for this week which includes contests for the second half season. The schedule will be found in the standings.

The PAYOFF

By HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service

Because they are getting the pitching they dreamed of all season, the Pittsburgh Pirates now are the biggest threat to the New York Giants in the National League.

The stretch the Corsairs closed by taking two tight games from the Reds in Cincinnati, July 4, hasn't been matched by any club in either major wheel this year.

It brought their string of consecutive victories to seven—gave them 23 victories in their last 31 games. They have won 20 games by one run.

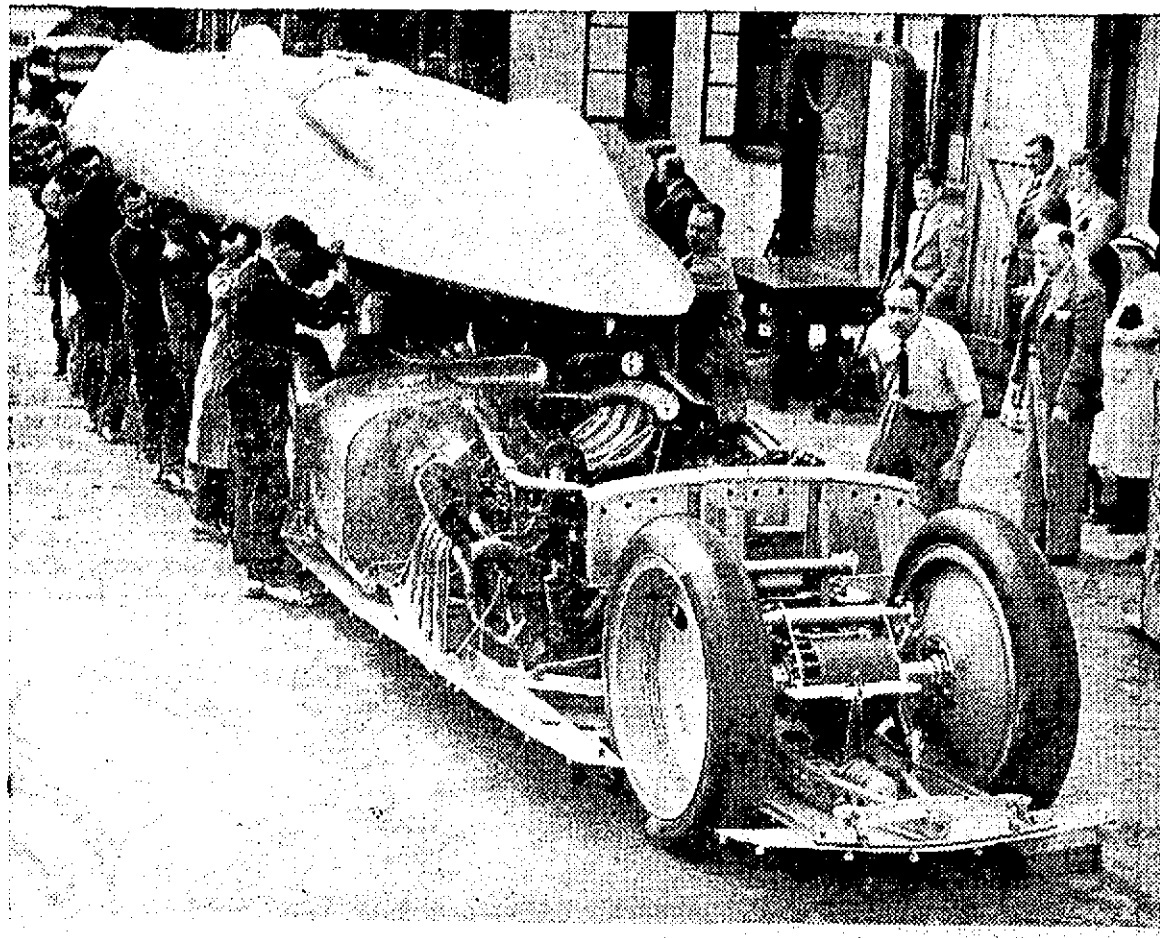

They now are the only outfit within easy striking distance of the Giants, who once more are sailing easily now that Carl Hubbell has regained his form.

The Buccaneers are getting tilt-edge hurling from Jim Tobin, Russ Bauers, Cy Blanton, Bob Klinger, and Bill Swift, and have the matchless Mace Brown on hand for relief.

They are where they are without the normal batting strength of Paul Wamer and Arky Vaughan, who are batting .257 and .288, respectively.

ball, enemy pitchers will suspect they are throwing bombs.

Meanwhile, Gus Suhr, Lloyd Wamer, Bill Brubaker, and Johnny Rizzo are carrying the bulk of Pittsburgh offensive burden. Suhr leads the lot with 335. Little Poison Wamer doesn't hit the ball for magnificent distances, but he seldom strikes out, and has a mark of 305. Brubaker is hitting .296.

Wally Berger ran up the embankment in left-center field of Crosley Field to grab Rizzo's liner that was ticked for three bases when the outfielder up from Columbus was stopped, July 4, after hitting safely in 15 straight games.

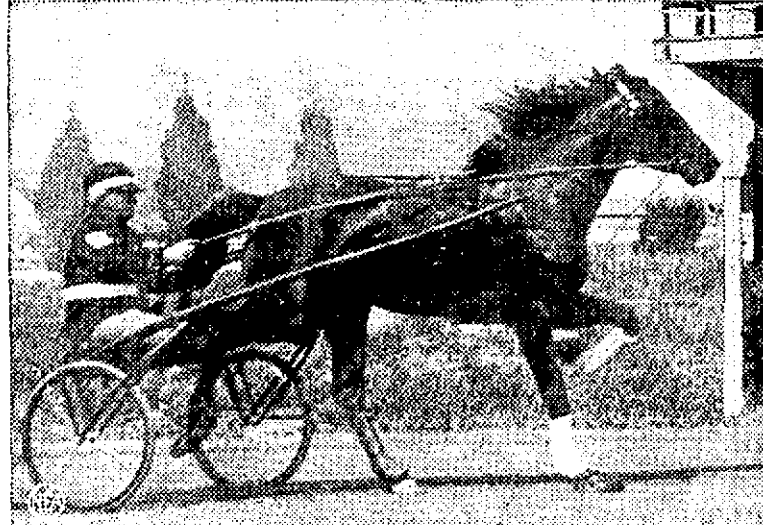

Vaughan isn't the slickest shortstop in the business. He is not the finest player on a double play, but he manages to cuff down every ball hit to his left or right, and rounds out an infield that is good enough. Suhr lacks some speed at first, but has a sure pair of hands. Pep Young plays plenty of second base, and Lee Handley will do at third.

Brooklyn No Help
The two Wamers and Rizzo give Pittsburgh a superlative outfield.

The club has excellent catching in large Al Todd and Al Berres.

Year in and year out, the Pirates start and finish well, but bog down in mid-season. Now that Pie Traynor has them rolling in the thick of the fight, they may get somewhere. The array has unlimited potentialities. Contrary to reports, the Buccos are not lazy, and they have the right spirit. Traynor calls the current outfit the Long Key, Ben F. White up, crosses the finish line a winner in the third and deciding mile of the Championship Stallion Stakes at North Randall, Cleveland. Long Key scored in the fastest three-year-old race trotted in the fixture since its inauguration in 1910. In the second heat, E. J. Merkle's 3-year-old equaled the record mile of 2:01½ for the trot, set by Greyhound in 1935. The brown son of Peter Volo-Iscala's Worthy clinched the long end of the $6185 purse by taking the third mile in 2:02. Champlain won the second in 2:01½. finest he's managed.

Pittsburgh opens at home against the custom club July 13, and must make hay while the sun shines, for it finishes on the road.

If the Dodgers could have won only a few games from the Giants, instead of losing 10 straight, the Pirates would be the first to say, "Thank you."

And that may be tough on Burleigh Grimes when the Brooklyn club considers replacing him with Babe Ruth and calls him into the front office this fall.

In baseball they don't ask, "How do you do it?"

Alabama May Have Weaker Grid Team

Tide Clashes With Southern California in Season's Opener

By PAUL SIMMONS
AP Feature Service Writer
TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — The nerve-racking going for Alabama on the Southeastern conference football front last season was bad enough. The way Coach Frank Thomas sees it now, it may be worst next fall.

Thomas' Crimson Tide won the conference title all right and went on to the Rose Bowl but it had to pull so many games out of the first by last-minute rallies that the coach was constantly on the verge of jitter.

"It was one tough league," Thomas recalled and the look on his face showed he wasn't joking.

"But it will be worse next fall. Practically all of the teams should be stronger."

"And," Coach Thomas added, "that's not all of my woes. There are a couple of freshmen I can't see how we can possibly replace—LeRoy Mosley, all-American guard, and Jim Ryba, tackle."

Some believe, though, that Coach Thomas should not be pessimistic. He

Dizzy Dean Comes Through With Win

Sets Boston Down With Four-Hit Pitching Performance

CHICAGO—(AP)—The one and only Dizzy Dean—and the rest of the Cubs—came through in spectacular style Sunday. At the cross-roads of his career, the pitcher for whom the Cubs paid $185,000 and three players, who had been nursing a sore arm since May 3, went to the mound and hurled a brilliant four-hit game to whip Boston's Bees, 3 to 1, in the opener of a double bill.

In the second game, Chicago won, 4 to 0, behind Bill Lee's five-hit hurling, giving Chicago six straight wins in four days and measurably brightening pennant hopes which only recently were fading badly. The Cubs thus went into third place, replacing the Cincinnati Reds, who lost a doubleheader to the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Old Diz beat Jim Turner, one of Boston's "old men," in a fine duel, Turner allowing but seven hits. It was the first appearance on the hill in more than two months for Diz, a throng of 35,023 packed Wrigley Field for the double program.

Grimacing cockily as he did in the days when he ranked as one of the game's greatest flingers, Dean received applause every time he came out of the dugout. As he finished a performance, which stamped him as fully ready to pitch regularly, Dean received a tremendous ovation. He used his fast ball fairly often and it had lots of "hop," his marvelous control and sharp-breaking curves had the Bees swinging helplessly most of the way. He walked no men, fanned three and was ahead of the hitters consistently. After the game Diz said his arm felt good.

Dean felt a slight twinge of pain, he said, on the fast ball with which he fanned Finchhitter Maggert in the ninth. The other Bees who went down on strikeouts were Vince DiMaggio and Gil English, both victims of curves.

Diz retired the first 14 men in a row. The 15th Bee hitter, Elbie Fletcher, tripled with two out in the fifth. His drive down the first base line, the first Bee hit, struck the bull pen bench and he was allowed to take third only after a protest by the Bees, Umpire Ziggy Sears first holding him at second. Diz apparently grew a little careless with the next batter, Ray Mueller slapping the first pitch for a double to score the only Bee run. Rabbit Warstler ended the inning by grounding out.

The Cubs scored a run in their half of the fifth to knot the count, then put the game on ice in the seventh as Frank Demaree doubled, Collins tripled, and Phil Cavarretta scored Collins with a long fly.

Dean made exactly 100 pitches and hurled to 31 batters in achieving his

Stronger Acres Are Put to Work on Porterfield Farm

Don't expect 8-cylinder production from 2-cylinder land. That's the advice of farmers cooperating with the Hope Soil Conservation project located on Typical south Arkansas soil. Farmers not familiar with modern soil conservation measures often expect the weak acres on a farm to carry the same burden of crop production as the strong acres. Farmers now consider as weak acres those lying on steep slopes, the gullied areas and areas where advanced sheet erosion has occurred.

J. A. Porterfield, owner and operator of a typical south Arkansas sandy land farm, says that the main idea of a complete coordinated erosion control program is to put every acre to its proper use. Mr. Porterfield believes that the "weaker" acres should have adequate protection from erosion. He further explains that the steep and badly eroded acres need grasses and trees to really save them from erosion. His idea is to return the steep slopes on his farm to pine trees and grass and to let the "stronger" acres, lying on more nearly level land, do the heavy work of producing watermelons, corn, cotton, etc.

In many areas where farmers have overlooked the erosion problem, half or more of the top soil has been washed away. In some cases farmers tried to practice "square" farming on "round" land. That is, the corn and cotton rows ran square with the world right up and down hill. Now farmers everywhere are plowing around the slope, on the level, rather than up and down hill.

In some places the productive value of the land has been totally destroyed by erosion, resulting from unwise land use. Farmers are now beginning to see, like Mr. Porterfield, that the answer to the erosion problem is careful planning and wise land use. The land will wear better if the crops are fitted to the "lay of the land", rather than fitting the land to the crops. The whole idea is to provide the greatest possible protection for the acres which tend to erode.

Wise land use is one of the many features of a coordinated erosion control program demonstrated on 100 co-operating farms in the Hope Soil Conservation Service Demonstration Area.

If you have an erosion problem on your farm, it would pay to visit one or more of these cooperating farms. Here you may see all of the latest known measures of erosion control installed on these farms on a field and farm test basis.

The arrangement is designed to provide a more direct drive from engine to wheels and permit a more unobstructed view of the road.

Say Wild West Shows Have Lost Appeal

CITYEVENNE, Wyo.—(AP)—The Buffalo Bill era is being pushed off the entertainment stage by an imaginative, scientific era that has caught the interest of the coming generation, says Colonel Tim F. McCoy, Wild West show impresario.

Colonel McCoy's own venture into the Wild West show business failed this spring.
